Flousehold and Agriculture.

FENCING AND VAGRANT STOCK .-A writer in the Rural Messenger has calculated the cost of one mile of "worm" or Virginia fence, made of pine poles and lasting ten years, to be about $190. In Montgomery the cost of one mile of substantial post and rail fence is $450. The same writer says that the fences of the United States, according to published reports, are estimated to "cost more than the houses, cities included - off what you can do to-day. more than the ships, beats and vessels of . Never trouble another for what you can every description that float the occan, do yourself. takes and rivers -more than the manufectures, of every kind with their mas have it. chinery-more than any one class of property aside from real estate, excepting it it is cheap. may be, the railroads of the country. Nicholas Biddle estimated that the little. fence tax of Pennsylvania was $10,000,-000 per year. General Worthington, of willingly. Moreover a fence run in the Virginia style, occupies five acres for every one hundred enclosed." Is not this a most unreasonable and exhausting tax? As far as it is caused by stock roaming upon the roads, would it not be cheaper for us to supply pasture to and she said in a sad tone of voice: "Ah! the animals of those who thus weigh us John. I fear you have ceased to love me." Benjamin Hallowell, in an exhaustive article upon this theme says: "When land is condemned for a road it is for a 'public passage' and for no other purpose whatsoever. All rights and privileges, therefore, not connected with its use as a highway, remain on every principle way of right and justice, with the the land was taken. No one, therefore, has a right to turn his cattle, swine or other stock into a road to use it as a pasture ground, or for any other purpose than that of travel from place to place." I am very giad to say that the decisions of the court are unanimous, as far as I A. M have learned, as to this view of the case, and the Grand Jury of Burlington county, N. J., recently presented to the court as a nuisance requiring abatement, the practice of allowing stock to run at large upon the county roads. - From an address by Mexicans have a method of subduing fractious horses and such as are inclined to run away, which might be introduced with profit here. A hood or winker is so arranged that the driver or rider can in an instant draw it directly over the eyes , of the animal, effectually blindfolding him. Whenever this is done the horse instantly becomes quiet, and a repetition of the blindfolding two or three times, gradually results in his becoming quiet and decile. Such an arrangement would be a valuable appendage to the head-gear of horses disposed to run away.

General Observation on Sleep.

Berhaave tells a story of a cranky German physician who maintained that sleep was the natural state of man, and to be awake was to be in a state of discase, under which belief this Teutonic dormouse eventually slept himself into the doctors and the physiologists, and, as usual, they tell you the symptoms and rebut help you no further. In fact, all they bach attributed it to a diminished flow of arterial blood to the brain. Dr. Elquence, not a cause of sleep. pressure on the brain produces involuntary sleep, but, nevertheless, there need not necessarily be pressure in true and natural sleep. Here again we arrive at one of nature's closed doors. The writers on sleep have noted several of its pnenomena. At the battle of the Nile, some of the ships' boys, worn with fatigue, fell asleep at the foot of the guns that were for a moment A. P. GORMAN, ceasing their remorseless fire. There M. Bannon, have been men so accustomed to the din Dr. E. J. HENKLE, of forges and the noise of mills that they DR. N. S. KNIGHTON, could not sleep in quiet places. During the retreat from Corunna the soldiers were often seen marching fast asleep. Some great men like Napoleon, have been able to sleep at will. Sir Walter Scott always said he required seven hours' sleep to refresh his huge brain. which he was fond,

Four spend in prayer; the rest on nature fix." But Sir William Jones took a less ascetic view of life when he wrote his paraphrase. Seven hours to law, in soothing slumber

The robust and ungallant old proverb has it, "Five hours for a man, six for a woman, and seven for a fool; but life, when that proverb was written, was slower and less exhaustive than it is now.

NEPTUNE'S CUP.-Sponges are the most truly manifold in form of any animals; they are met with of all shapes, all sizes, and all colors. Some branch out like trees; many resemble a funnel or a trumpet; others are divided into lobes like great fingers, for instance, the Neptune's Glore. One variety produces regular WATCHES, CLOCKS AND JEWELRY 19 sponge monuments which grow from paired by competent workmen at John Nick-las', COR, BALTIMORE & PACA STS. three feet three inches to six feet and a CURRY COMBS, CARDS and Brushes at hand at half on the submarine rocks.
